Agriculture is not just farming its much more. Our everyday life is part of some type of agriculture, such as food shelter, clothing, nature, and animals. In El Paso we are in a serious drought and in desperate need of water. This crisis is affecting agricultural based businesses, some of these photos represent the dryness and the extreme lack of water we have. People take advantage of water when we should be conserving it and when we do have water we have beautiful flowers that are also in the photo essay.

Some of the ways agriculture has affected our environment is by the extreme heat we have and makes our community quench for water. In the photo essay, it makes you understand how serious our drought is. And if we don't take precaution to it now we could have serious consequences such as DEATH.

Agriculture is not just about farming but in fact it is much more. Our lives depend on it. So everyone take notice, its important and it is necessary.
