Agriculture is a broad topic and begins with the producing and ends with the consuming. We use agriculture in our everyday lives. We wear it, we eat it, we sleep on it, and we are stunned by its beauty it has to offer. We need it to survive.

In the photo essay, the shoes in the beginning represent a part of agriculture that we use everyday. It also represents the different personalities of people who buy the products and how much humans are a part of agriculture also how it affects them in different ways. The mountains in the essay represent the captivating scenery this world has created and offered us in a variety of ways. The plants signify the beauty and the production of food that we consume and the air that we breathe on a daily basis. The sun in the essay provides energy for our plants to grow and produce. Without our basic essentials such as shelter, food, clothing, and water, our world would not exist as we know it.

Agriculture has impacted our entire world and has put smiles on the people we know and love. It has developed and gone to greater, bigger, and better things. It's advancing as we speak and will continue to prosper.
